Progress Seen in Recovery

Under fire, Bush arrives for third visit to battered Gulf

NEW ORLEANS | Workers here were picking up trash Sunday, a small miracle under the circumstances. The airport opened to cargo traffic. A bullhorn-wielding volunteer led relief workers in a chorus of "Amazing Grace."

Nearly two weeks after Hurricane Katrina's onslaught, the day was marked by signs that hopelessness was beginning to lift in this shattered city. While the final toll from the disaster remains unknown, there were indications New Orleans had begun to turn a corner.

Bush

"You see the cleaning of the streets. You see the people coming out," said the volunteer with the bullhorn, Norman Flowers.

"The people aren't as afraid anymore."

Meanwhile, eager to show hands-on leadership in the Gulf Coast hurricane recovery effort, President Bush joined commanders working from a military ship docked in this flooded city.

On Monday, he planned to tour the New Orleans area and Gulfport, Miss., in his third and longest visit to the region in the nearly two weeks since Hurricane Katrina and subsequent flooding struck the states.

Hurricane Katrina has been a low point in Bush's presidency, with his job approval dipping to a record 39 percent in an Associated Press-Ipsos poll last week. Just over half of respondents said he is at fault for the slow response to the hurricane. (AP)

GENERATORS | Power Walking Here's a novel way to generate electricity: Researchers have developed a backpack that, when carried on your back, turns energy into electricity. It doesn't crank out a lot of juice, but it's enough to run such things as an MP3 player, personal data assistant and cell phone. The researchers used a backpack fastened to the carrying frame by springs; the up-and-down motion caused by walking powers a small generator, producing electricity. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

With This Loot, I Can Buy a Getaway Car

A Nadderwater, England, man was given probabtion Wednesday for a burglary that was foiled when he mistakenly asked his victim for a ride, the Western Morning News reported. On April 24, after finding his house ransacked and his children hiding in the bathroom, Chris Lee set out to look for the thief. Three miles down the road, he came across Jethro Smith pushing a wheelbarrow filled with Lee's stolen belongings. When Lee pulled up to confront him, Smith asked for a ride. Lee declined and called police. (EXPRESS)

DELIVERIES

What Can Brown Steal From You?

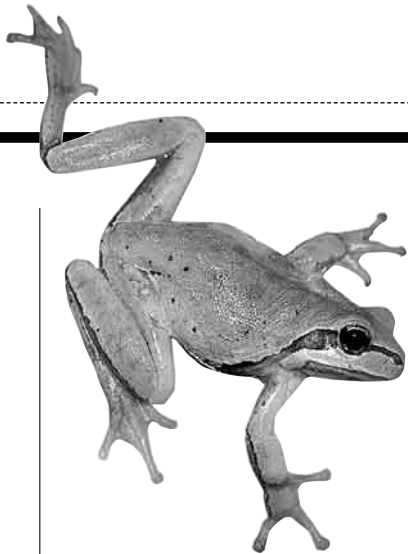

An Elkhart, Ind., man whose prized University of Notre Dame season football tickets failed to arrive finally found out where they ended up: at the delivery man's house. The man called the delivery service Aug. 16 looking for his tickets — valued at $10,000 — and was told they had been dropped off at the wrong address. This week, police learned the tickets were at the home of Ronnie Allard, the delivery man. Allard had asked his girlfriend to steal the tickets after he delivered them, police said. (AP)

Pack Lederhosen

People who do kooky things for their pets transcend all cultures. Today's case-in-point: These two dogs, Zoroline, left, and Spitzerich, who are all decked out in traditional Bavarian dirndl and leather trousers as they sat at a garden in Hailing, Germany on Sunday. The dogs' owner, Hildegard Bergbauer, specially designed the outfits to match the traditional garb of local residents. (EXPRESS)

WHITE MEAT

This Doesn't Taste Like Chicken

An Auckland, New Zealand, shop is being investigated after selling frozen frog legs labeled as chicken thighs, the New Zealand Press Association reported. Thevi Peung, who runs the store, said she imported them thinking they were chickens, but decided to sell them anyway. She admitted she should have had an inspector clear the frogs; she used the "chicken thighs" label because the label machine didn't have a label for frogs. (EXPRESS)

Damage From Katrina Sends Gas Prices to All-Time High

Damage to Gulf Coast refineries and pipelines by Hurricane Katrina pushed retail gas prices to historic highs in the past two weeks, with self-serve regular averaging more than $3 a gallon for the first time ever, according to a nationwide survey released Sunday. The weighted average price for all three grades surged more than 38 cents to nearly $3.04 a gallon between Aug. 26 and Sept. 9, said Trilby Lundberg, who publishes the semimonthly Lundberg Survey. After Katrina, an Inevitable Rebirth

The economically vital New Orleans must be rebuilt, experts say

NEW YORK | New Orleans will be rebuilt, despite its vulnerability to Mother Nature.

History, geography and especially economics make it inevitable that New Orleans will be rebuilt — almost certainly with more substantial flood protection. The city is, always has been and probably always will be a vital U.S. port.

"We cannot live without it," said Ari Kelman, a historian at the University of California, Davis, and the author of "A River and its City: The Nature of Landscape in New Orleans."

New Orleans lies at the outlet of a 15,000-mile river transportation network that stretches from the Rocky Mountains to the Alleghenies. That's why French settlers located it there in the first

Altogether, the docks in and around New Orleans handle more than 100 million tons of cargo annually, making it the world's third-busiest port by volume.

Some economists have predicted that many of the lawyers, accountants and other professionals who have

But the French Quarter isn't going anywhere. With the Quarter and other popular destinations relatively undamaged by the flooding of lower-lying parts of New Orleans, the city still has plenty of appeal for tourists. "I guarantee you that it would cost many times more to abandon the city than to rebuild it," said Laurence Geller, president and CEO of Strategic Hotel Capital.

Carolinas Wary of Hurricane Ophelia

Storm expected to graze coast on its way north, forecasters say

WILMINGTON, N.C. | Hurricane Ophelia sat nearly stationary off the coast of the Carolinas on Sunday, taunting coastal residents made wary by the destruction that Katrina caused along the Gulf Coast.

The storm was more than 200 miles from land with sustained wind of 80 mph, but it was piling up heavy surf that challenged surfers and pounded the beaches. A hurricane watch remained in effect from just north of Edisto Beach, S.C., to North Carolina's Cape Lookout, a stretch of more than 250 miles.

Warning of the possibility of coastal flooding, Gov. Mike Easley sent 200 National Guard soldiers to staging centers in eastern North Carolina and ordered a mandatory evacuation of tourists visiting fragile Ocracoke Island on the Outer Banks, reachable only by ferry. Residents of the island were allowed to stay. PAUL NOWELL (AP)

Families Salute 9/11 Victims

Ceremonies mark 4 years since thousands died in terrorist attacks

NEW YORK | Weeping relatives marked the anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks Sunday with prayers, solemn remembrances and heartfelt messages to their dead brothers and sisters at the site where the World Trade Center collapsed in a nightmarish cloud of dust and debris four years ago.

In a ceremony lasting longer than four hours, more than 600 relatives read the names of the 2,749 victims who died at the trade center. Several blew kisses to the sky after reading a loved one's name, while others left the microphone sobbing.

"We miss you Charlie and we love you, your boys will always remember," Peggy Garbarini told her brother, Fire Lt. Charles William Garbarini, who was 44 when he died at the trade center.

As the names were read, weeping mourners filed down a ramp to a reflecting memorial pool at the floor of the site, which remains virtually empty four years after the attack. Families filled the water with red, orange and yellow roses, some shaking as they inscribed dedications on the wooden edge of the pool.

The ceremony paused for moments of silence at 8:46 a.m., the time at which a hijacked jetliner crashed into the north tower; at 9:03 a.m., the moment a second plane struck the south tower; at 9:59 a.m., when the south tower fell; and at 10:29 a.m., when the second tower collapsed.

In southwestern Pennsylvania, about 1,000 people attended a memorial service in the field where United Airlines Flight 93 crashed after it was hijacked by terrorists.

Specter: No Roe Question for Roberts

Senator says he'll ask high court nominee about privacy instead

WASHINGTON | The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee said Sunday he will not ask Supreme Court nominee John Roberts whether he would vote to overturn the landmark decision that legalized abortion.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., did say he planned to ask Roberts, the president's pick to succeed the late William H. Rehnquist as chief justice, whether there is a right to privacy in the Constitution.

Roberts' confirmation hearings before the committee were to begin Monday. Specter said he was uncertain whether Roberts would favor overturning the Roe v. Wade decision from 1973 that established a right to abortion. Specter supports a woman's right to choose to end her pregnancy.

"I think it is inappropriate to ask him head-on if he's going to overturn Roe, but I believe that there are many issues close to the issue, like his respect for precedent," Specter told NBC's "Meet the Press."

But Specter said asking Roberts, now an appeals court judge,

Court Orders Arrest of Former PM Bhutto's Spouse

A Pakistani anti-corruption court has ordered the arrest of former Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto's husband for failing to attend hearings in trials over charges that he skimmed off kickbacks in awarding contracts, a lawyer said Sunday. The court issued a warrant for Asif Ali Zardari on Saturday, Zardari's lawyer Farooq Naek said. Bhutto was twice elected prime minister in the 1980s and '90s — but both times her government was dismissed over allegations of corruption. (AP)

Clashes Erupt During March Marking Pinochet's Coup

A march marking the 32nd anniversary of the military coup of Gen. Augusto Pinochet lapsed into violence Sunday as thousands of leftist protesters clashed with riot police. Thirteen people were detained, said Interior Minister Francisco Vidal. The crowd marched to a memorial at a cemetery to pay tribute to the victims of Pinochet's 1973-90 regime. Police estimated the protest crowd at 9,000 while organizers put the figure much higher. (AP)

Japanese PM appears set for landslide win in snap election vote

TOKYO | Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi scored a political triumph Sunday as the long-ruling Liberal Democratic Party headed for a landslide win in an election touted as a referendum on his push to privatize Japan's cash-swollen postal system.

Early Monday, public broadcaster NHK projected the LDP won 296 seats in parliament's 480-seat law-making lower house, far more than the 241 needed for a majority and the 249 seats it held when Koizumi dissolved the chamber Aug. 8.

Insurgents Flee Offensive in Tal Afar

Joint U.S.-Iraqi force reports killing some 150 rebels in sweep

TAL AFAR, IRAQ | Insurgents staged a classic guerrilla retreat from Tal Afar on Sunday, melting into the countryside through a network of tunnels to escape an Iraqi-U.S. force that reported killing about 150 rebels while storming the militant bastion.

With the city swept clear of extremists for the second time in a year, Iraqi and U.S. military leaders vowed to redouble efforts to crush insurgents operating all along the Syrian frontier and in the Euphrates River valley.

U.S. soldiers wait for orders during operations in Tal Afar, Iraq, on Sunday.

As Baghdad kept a border crossing into Syria closed about 60 miles west of Tal Afar, Defense Minister Sadoun al-Dulaimi issued a warning: "The Syrians have to stop sending destruction to Iraq. We know the terrorists have no other gateway into Iraq but Syria."

The U.S. and Iraq routinely charge that Syria does little to stop the flow of Arab fighters across the border. Syrian leaders contend they are doing all they can.

While insurgents were retreating from Tal Afar, militants elsewhere killed one U.S. soldier and a British soldier in separate roadside bombings Sunday and assassinated an official in Iraq's Interior Ministry.

Iran Stays Defiant on Nuke Plan

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iran said Sunday it would not stop uranium conversion and warned of consequences if it was referred to the U.N. Security Council for possible sanctions over its nuclear program.

Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottaki said Iran wants more talks with Europe without preconditions and rejected a U.S.-European threat that Tehran has about a week to freeze uranium processing or face referral to the Security Council.

"If a political decision is made to refer Iran to the U.N. Security Council, it will be entering a lose-lose game," Mottaki told a news conference. "It will have its own certain consequences and will affect Iran's decisions. We prefer that such a game is not played."

Mottaki also said Iran plans to seek bids for building two more nuclear power plants in the Islamic republic. ALI AKBAR DAREINI (AP)

Belfast Rocked By Wave of Riots

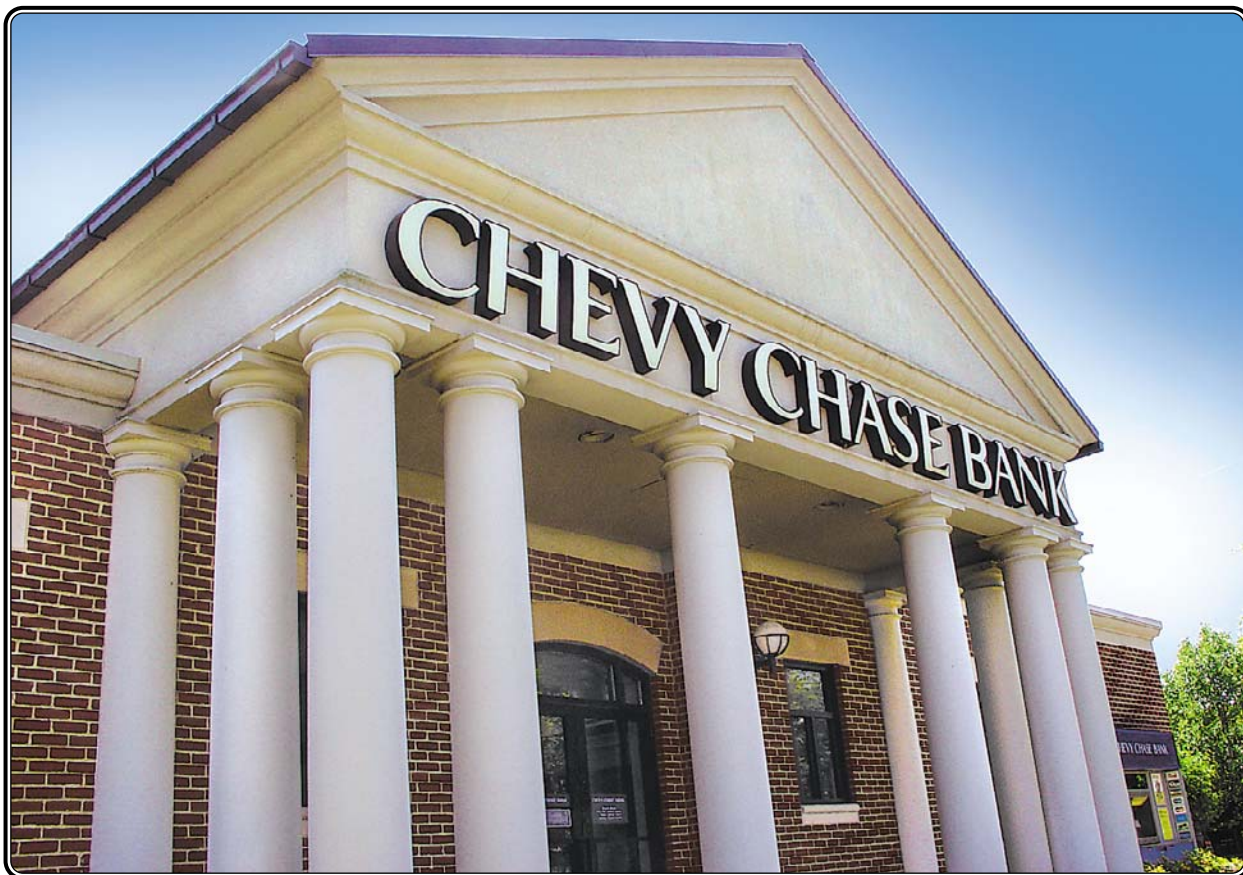

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND | Protestant extremists rioted for a second straight night Sunday, attacking police and burning cars in some of the most widespread street mayhem that Belfast has experienced for a decade.

Police advised drivers to avoid several working-class Protestant parts of the city, where thousands of men and youths blocked roads and lobbed a range of objects at police equipped with helmets, body armor and flame-retardant suits.

Chief Constable Hugh Orde, head of Northern Ireland's mostly Protestant police, blamed the Orange Order brotherhood for inspiring the riots. The violence began when police prevented Orangemen from parading near a hard-line Catholic part of Belfast. (AP)

Last Israeli Troops Departing Gaza

Palestinians start to move in as final stage of pullout takes place

NEVE DEKALIM, GAZA STRIP | The last Israeli troops began driving out of the Gaza Strip in large convoys early Monday and flag-waving Palestinian police took over the abandoned positions as Israel wrapped up its historic pullout from the coastal territory after 38 years of occupation.

Some 5,000 Israeli troops left in Gaza began driving toward Israel and the last Israeli soldier was to be out by daybreak. Meanwhile, Palestinian police on foot and in buses moved into the abandoned Jewish settlements, accompanied by cars carrying civilians who honked horns and waved flags.

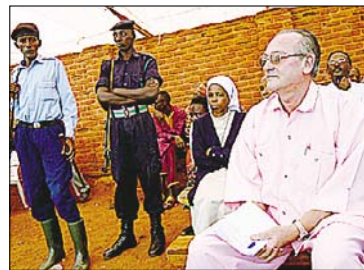

LOOKING FORWARD: Palestinians celebrate the Israeli withdrawal on sand dunes overlooking the former Jewish settlement of Netzarim in the Gaza Strip on Sunday.

Palestinian forces in red berets planted their flag in what was once the largest Jewish settlement in Gaza, Neve Dekalim. Hundreds of Palestinians celebrated, beating drums and marching toward the settlements. In the abandoned Morag settlement, the synagogue was set on fire. Mosques blared chants praising the "liberation" and fireworks lit up the sky.

Late Sunday, Israeli troops had lowered their national banner in Neve Dekalim, snapped farewell pictures and closed army headquarters, which were left intact for use by the Palestinians.

The withdrawal, code-named "Last Watch," was marked with Israeli-Palestinian disputes, including border issues and Israel's last-minute decision not to demolish Gaza synagogues. ARON HELLER (AP)

Rwandan Court Charges Belgian In Genocide Probe

KIGALI, RWANDA | A Rwandan community court on Sunday charged a Belgian missionary with inciting and planning the 1994 genocide in which more than half a million people were killed.

The community court classified Guy Theunis as a category one genocide suspect — reserved for alleged leaders of the 100-day slaughter. The case was automatically transferred for trial to a conventional court, where the missionary will face a possible death penalty.

Theunis — who worked as the editor of Rwanda's periodical "Le Dialogue" — denied allegations that he incited the genocide by reproducing articles from the "Kangura," a newspaper that promoted the killing of members of the Tutsi ethnic minority. (AP)

Encephalitis Death Toll Rises to 650

LUCKNOW, INDIA | Nearly 650 people, mostly children, have died from an outbreak of Japanese encephalitis in northern India after 55 more people perished over the weekend, officials said Sunday.

Hospitals in India's largest state, Uttar Pradesh, were struggling to cope with the influx of patients suffering from the mosquito-borne disease. Another 87 people were hospitalized during the weekend, bringing the number of patients to more than 3,040, said O.P. Singh, of the state's health services.

Authorities expect the outbreak to ebb by the end of the monsoon season later this month. (AP)

Walk Commemorates 9/11

Thousands march on 4th anniversary of 2001 terrorist attacks

WASHINGTON | It was a demonstration unlike legions of others in the capital. The T-shirts were Pentagon-approved, signs were banned and Cabinet secretaries, usually the target of protest, cheered on the throngs.

Thousands walked Sunday in remembrance of the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, in tribute to U.S. troops abroad.

By their presence, marchers endorsed the worldwide fight against terrorism that began after airliners slammed into the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and a Pennsylvania field four years ago.

U.S. soldiers in Iraq, Afghanistan and other outposts watched on video links as the crowd shouted, "America supports you."

References to the politically divisive Iraq war were muted, but support for President Bush's policy was, for many, a subtext of the day.

D.C. Homeless Ask: What About Us?

District houses Gulf evacuees while some locals still on streets

WASHINGTON | Like many Americans, Al Szekely donated what he could to the victims of Hurricane Katrina. For the 58-year-old former handyman, that was $12. Then he went back to where he lives on Pennsylvania Avenue — a park bench with a view of the Capitol.

Szekely is one of an estimated 17,340 people who find themselves homeless in Washington at some point in the course of a year, according to local groups and city officials.

The District of Columbia mobilized quickly to take in 295 hurricane evacuees — a fact some homeless people say makes them feel forgotten in this city, which has the second-highest poverty rate in the nation when compared with states, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

Evacuee Tommy Riley spent seven days trapped in his brother's New Orleans home before being airlifted to Washington — his first trip to the nation's capital. He said he was surprised to see homeless people sleeping in front of the White House.

"They're not even taking care of their own," he said of city officials. "They've got to do that before taking care of me," he said.

Advocates for the homeless warn of discrimination against those who have been homeless all along.

"If he's a bearded homeless person and he fits the stereotype,

Natural Gas Fund Strained

Md. seeks federal aid to bolster program that helps poor heat homes

BALTIMORE | Maryland's poor people could be socked by heating bills they can't afford this winter, thanks to Hurricane Katrina and higher energy costs, and a state official is warning Maryland may have to reduce benefits for poor people just when heating costs the most.

Maryland adds more money to a federal pot aimed at helping low-income people pay home heating costs in the winter, but the director of Maryland's program, Mary Lou Kueffer, said rising energy costs mean there won't be enough money to go around this winter if Congress doesn't add to the fund.

"We have never run out of money yet, but we're concerned," said Kueffer, director of Maryland's Office of Home Energy Programs.

This winter, she said, the number of people asking for help could jump 10 percent. That's because national estimates say Katrina's damage to natural gas and oil production could drive home heating costs up 30 percent or more this winter.

Retro-ize Your Cell Phone

Talk on a mobile via a traditional handset with RCA's new dock

PHONES | If you've ditched Ma Bell or her landline offspring in favor of a cellular phone, you've probably noticed the tiny gadgets are usually designed more for mobility than comfort during long gabfests.

The problem is solved by the RCA Cell Docking System, which extends the functions (and free minutes) of a cell phone to a traditional-style handset that can be kept anywhere around the house.

The RCA Cell Docking System is $150.

The $150 system includes a silver-and-black dock into which the cell phone is connected and a cordless 2.4-gigahertz handset that feels better than any cell phone I've ever tried to perch between my shoulder and ear.

The RCA dock isn't unique, as other companies offer similar setups. But it stands out in terms of the effort put into making the dock compatible with as many cell phone models as possible. Currently, it works with about 60 phones from Nokia Corp., Motorola Inc. and Sony Ericsson.

The sound quality is as good as any cellular phone, which is to say not as clear as a traditional phone. Some callers noticed echoes and static.

When receiving calls, the dock sends caller ID information received by cell phone to the handset, which displays phone numbers on an LCD screen.

If you have both regular landline and cellular service, you also can plug a traditional phone line into the handset base station. That not only enables calling from either but also three-way conferences.

The main benefit of converging both services is that users can take full advantage of their free minutes. When they're depleted, the plain old phone system is a button-push away. MATTHEW FORDAHL (AP)

The Redskins Win, Barely

Defense stuffs Chicago in 9-7 opener victory

REDSKINS | The Chicago Bears were driving in Washington Redskins territory in the fourth quarter, seemingly poised to make a winner of a rookie quarterback on opening day.

Then, in one cruel sequence, the Redskins rattled the drive into oblivion. False start on Fred Miller. False start on John Tait. False start on Ruben Brown. Kyle Orton sacked by Demetric Evans. Suddenly, it was third-and-38. The Bears' last good scoring chance was over, and Washington's defense showed it hadn't lost a beat from last year in leading the team to a 9-7 victory Sunday.

The Redskins allowed only 166 total yards, overcame three turnovers, several untimely penalties and the loss of starter Patrick

Ramsey, who had his neck wrung in the second quarter. Mark Brunell, booed last year by the home fans, entered and led three scoring drives, all ending in field goals by John Hall and powered by Clinton Portis, who rushed for 121 yards on 21 carries.

The Redskins, seeking to rebound from a 6-10 record in coach Joe Gibbs' comeback year, won their fourth straight season opener, although the victory was hardly a convincing one.

Gibbs opened up the offense considerably — using spread formations, passing in running situations and even using safety Sean Taylor as a receiver — but the only play that reached the end zone was negated by a penalty.

“It's disappointing, but not that

Ramsey Taken Out by Clothesline

REDSKINS | Washington Redskins quarterback Patrick Ramsey left Sunday's game against the Chicago Bears in the second quarter after a ferocious hit by linebacker Lance Briggs.

Briggs came on a blitz, leaped to get past right tackle Jon Jansen and reached with his right arm to clobber Ramsey neck-high. Ramsey went down immediately and fumbled. Mark Brunell entered for the Redskins. Ramsey was OK by half-time, but coach Joe Gibbs stuck with Brunell for the rest of the 9-7 victory.

Gibbs would not say whether Ramsey or Brunell will start next week at Dallas. The coach also said Briggs should have been penalized. “Unless I missed something, that should have been 15 yards if I have ever seen it,” Gibbs said. (AP)

The Saints' sideline erupts after John Carney nails the game-winning kick Sunday.

Saints Celebrate Uplifting Victory

FOOTBALL | The New Orleans Saints took their minds off two weeks of death and despair, focused on football and won a game Sunday for the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Deuce McAllister ran for two touchdowns and John Carney kicked a 47-yard field goal with 3 seconds left to lift the Saints to an emotional 23-20 season-opening win over the Carolina Panthers.

The Saints rushed out on the field to celebrate the kick, their first joy since Katrina tore through New Orleans on Aug. 29. Like the thousands of evacuees, the storm left them homeless and searching for a little bit of normalcy.

They found it on the field, scoring an important victory over an NFC South rival and an emotional win for their fans.

The Saints are playing this season for their deluged city and the displaced victims. They have visited shelters in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, spending time with fans who had lost everything.

Each time they heard the same request: Win a game for us.

On Sunday, the Saints did just that. JENNA FRYER (AP)

Frerotte Leads Dolphins to Win

FOOTBALL | Gus Frerotte led a creative offense by throwing for 275 yards, Jason Taylor returned a fumble 85 yards for a score and Miami successfully kicked off the Nick Saban era with a 34-10 win over the Denver Broncos.

The Broncos lost cornerback Champ Bailey and running back Mike Anderson to injuries, wilted in the 90-degree South Florida heat and dropped an opener for only the third time in 13 years under coach Mike Shanahan. (AP)

Guillen Rips the Nationals After Emotional Loss

NATIONALS | Without naming names, without going into specifics, Washington Nationals outfielder Jose Guillen said after Sunday's 9-7 loss to Atlanta that he has doubts as to how much some teammates care about winning.

Lots of times, you really need guys for motivation, guys trying to help your teammates. Lots of times, you see a lot of guys, they don't really care," Guillen said. "But what can you do? It's a long season. Probably, a lot of guys here are tired, probably want to go home."

Continuing on, he said: "It's not even close to the team we had in the first half."

Asked what has changed, Guillen responded: "Everything." (AP)

Nats Rally, Then Blow Win

Cordero gives up back-to-back homers in 9th against Braves

NATIONALS | Andruw Jones and Chipper Jones made up for another poor outing by the Braves' bullpen.

They hit consecutive homers off Chad Cordero with two outs in the ninth inning Sunday to give Atlanta a 9-7 victory over Washington, which had rallied with a five-run eighth after John Smoltz left with tightness in his pitching shoulder.

For Andruw Jones, it was his second homer of the game and 49th of the season. He broke the franchise record of 47 shared by Hall of Famers Hank Aaron (1971) and Eddie Mathews (1953).

Chad Cordero reacts after blowing the save in the Nationals' 9-7 loss Sunday.

Chipper Jones' two-run shot off Cordero (2-4) erased a 7-6 deficit for Atlanta — which led 6-2 heading into the bottom of the eighth. Andruw Jones followed by driving an 0-2 pitch to left.

"All the guys went out there today and battled all day, and I throw one inning and I blow it," Cordero said. "I just want to throw stuff. I'm just upset."

Macay McBride (1-0) earned his first major league victory. He faced one batter, striking out Brian Schneider to end the eighth. Kyle Farnsworth got his sixth save.

Until Jones and Jones brought Atlanta back, it looked as if Washington might actually win a game on an afternoon they trailed 6-0, used eight pitchers, and had four rookies in the starting lineup.

ACE: Roger Federer celebrates his U.S. Open championship Sunday after defeating Andre Agassi in four sets in New York.

Federer Conquers Agassi for Title

TENNIS | Roger Federer, a man of panache and unparalleled perfection in finals, withstood Andre Agassi's spirited upset bid to capture a second straight U.S. Open and sixth Grand Slam title on Sunday.

Federer responded to his few moments of pressure by reeling off seven straight points in the tiebreak that turned the match around, then blew Agassi away in the fourth set to win 6-3, 2-6, 7-6 (1), 6-1 and run his stunning record in finals to 23-0.

Federer moved into a tie with Stefan Edberg and Boris Becker for Grand Slam titles among Open era players, and one behind John McEnroe and Mats Wilander. Pete Sampras holds the record with 14 Grand Slam titles, but at 24 years old Federer could well have a shot at that.

Federer shrieked and leapt in the air when Agassi's backhand return looped long on the championship point. The two men, who have the highest of respect for each other, shook hands warmly at the net.

Though the 35-year-old Agassi was the oldest U.S. Open men's finalist in 31 years, age had less to do with the difference in this match than Federer's sheer strength, variety of serves, and superior balance of attacks from the baseline and the net that wore down Agassi. (AP)

Baltimore Topples Top Rookie

ORIOLES | Bruce Chen overcame a shaky start to pitch six solid innings and the Baltimore Orioles roughed up rookie phenom Felix Hernandez in a 6-3 victory Sunday over the Seattle Mariners.

The 19-year-old Hernandez, who had a 1.59 ERA through his first seven starts, gave up five runs in the second inning. Bernie Castro and Melvin Mora each drove in two.

Hernandez (3-3) lasted seven innings, allowing six runs and six hits. He walked three and struck out five.

The first three Baltimore batters in the second reached on a single by Jay Gibbons and walks to B.J. Surhoff and Alejandro Freire.

David Newhan hit a sacrifice fly. After Fasano struck out, Brian Roberts walked to load the bases again and Castro sliced a two-run double to left. Mora followed with a two-run single — he was thrown out in a rundown between first and second, but the Orioles had a 5-3 lead. (AP)

Maryland Looks for Lessons in Loss

Terps look to rebound after blowing lead in loss to No. 25 Tigers

TERPS FOOTBALL | If Maryland can use its loss to Clemson as a learning experience, then the Terrapins may ultimately benefit from the unsavory defeat.

In falling to the 25th-ranked Tigers 28-24 on Saturday, the Terrapins found out that no lead is safe — not even a 10-point cushion with eight minutes left.

"We felt like the game was right in our hands," linebacker David Holloway said. "We were up, and it was on the defense to close the game out. It's disappointing to let the game slip away like that."

The next time they're in that situation, it's likely the Terrapins (1-1) will have a different mind-set. Next up is West Virginia on Saturday.

Certainly, coach Ralph Friedgen will spend time this week working with the team on wrapping up a victory that appears assured in the fourth quarter.

"I'll be very disappointed if they don't respond to this game," he said after the stinging defeat. "They ignored an opportunity that they had sitting right there for them."

Not so much ignored, but frittered away.

Three foolish penalties against the Terrapins aided Clemson's first two touchdown drives. If the Tigers didn't get those two scores, a comeback would not have been possible.

"We are not a team that can give a ranked team 14 points and expect to win," Friedgen said.

Bonds Excited About '05 Debut

BASEBALL | A cheerful Barry Bonds looked upbeat and relaxed Sunday as he prepared to come off the disabled list and play for the first time this year. He will start in left field and bat cleanup when he makes his return to the San Francisco Giants' lineup Monday night as they open a three-game series against the San Diego Padres at SBC Park.

Bonds took batting practice and shagged fly balls in the outfield Sunday. He joked around with Cubs star Nomar Garciaparra and even shook hands with a baby. "Right now, I'm just trying to keep my mind clear, that's it," Bonds said. (AP) KARMIC PAYBACK: "My Name Is Earl" is a smart comedy with an unusual premise — and might be NBC's season-saver.

Trailer Fabulous

NBC's 'Earl' brings Jason Lee and his new mustache to TV

CHANGE OF PACE | After dropping out of high school in his senior year, Jason Lee decided to become a professional skateboarder, so he did.

Then, after snagging a role in the Kevin Smith film "Mallrats," he decided to become a full-time actor. He did that too, with a 10-year film career that has taken him to a level somewhere between the guy who steals the show and the star in movies like "Almost Famous" and "The Ballad of Jack and Rose."

There was just one thing Lee was pretty sure he never wanted to do:

cross over to TV.

The character that made him change his mind is the protagonist of "My Name Is Earl," that guy you see in the gas station buying a pack of smokes, a scratch Lotto ticket and a beer at 10 a.m.

Earl is something of a small-town criminal, but after learning about karma and winning $100,000 on a scratch ticket, he uses the money and his new outlook on life to try to make up for all the wrong he's ever done. Ethan Suplee plays Earl's brother Randy in the show, which debuts on NBC Sept. 20, and Jaime Pressly is his nagging ex-wife.

"Earl is definitely not a suit-wearing lawyer," said Lee, decked out in his Earl attire, which includes jeans, boots and a Lynyrd Skynyrd T-shirt underneath a flannel shirt.

Then there's the mustache. "It was definitely right for the role," Lee said. "But then afterward I was like, 'Great, now I have to wear this for six months out of the year.'"

Lee allows that he and Earl have a bit in common. "I'm pretty mellow like Earl, and I have a good heart. But have I ever stolen a car radio or a car from a one-legged girl? No. Not really."

Still, he may have bought a tall-boy or two at 10 in the morning back in his younger days, he remembers winning $100 or so on a scratch ticket, and he smokes.

Lee said it's more flattering when people who recognize him refer to his performance in a particular role than when they say, "Hey, it's that guy!" He's come to realize that he may have people shouting "Hey, Earl," but he's ready. "Luckily, I like the show a lot, so I'm not gonna mind," Lee said.

"And I'm gonna have the 'stache, so how can it be avoided?"

Some Not-So-Stuffy Animals

Super Furry Animals trade agitation for rock entertainment

MUSIC | It's difficult not to use the word "weird" in describing the Super Furry Animals. Not many rock bands are Welsh; even fewer dress as yetis.

The first sound on "Love Kraft" (XL Recordings/Beggars Group), the Furries' seventh album, is guitarist Bunf splashing into a swimming pool. Kerplunk goes the Super Soggy Animal.

Then comes "Zoom," a blistering, seven-minute swirl of slashing guitar and foreboding choir. Gruff Rhys sings, "I can't get enough of it/Kiss me with apocalips/An instant hit." After the band's overtly political "Phantom Power" in 2003, it sounds as though Rhys has thrown up his hands at the world: "Dug myself a hole/Then I fell into a vacuum."

Though the Furries exhibited a more even-keeled melody on "Phantom," here they are back to their usual unpredictability — thanks partly to writing and singing contributions from all of the group's members.

The sweeping strings and sugary

KRAFTY: SFA in a non-yeti moment.

lilt of "Walk You Home" is followed by "Lazer Beam," a call to revolution and "no more romantic comedies" via groovy, utopia-making space chariots — which are really the best kind of space chariots.

Obviously, the Super Furry Animals can be a bit much. But they steer one of the most entertaining and beautiful trips down an LP this side of the Flaming Lips.

In a stunning bridge on "Frequency," the Furries show they still have some fight left in them: "Hand in hand we can break the command."

But it's impossible to actually think about politics during "Frequency" — or most any SFA song. In this sonic world, the real one doesn't make a splash.

Paul Wall wants to tell the world about Texas' 'screw' music

NEW FACES | Twenty-five grand worth of diamonds and platinum sit in Paul Wall's mouth, and syrupy Texas slang drips out of it.

With the upcoming Tuesday release of his major label debut, "The People's Champ," the rapper—who's also basking in the spotlight of his appearance on Mike Jones' hit ode to cruising, "Still Tippin'"—keeps busy by selling jewel-encrusted teeth to his celebrity friends.

He's also on a crusade to sell the rap world on screw music—Houston's hypnotic, slowed-down style of rap.

"Screw is the backbone of Texas music," Wall said. "Screw music just represents everything that our culture is here in Texas."

Wall, 24, got involved in the business of making teeth a few years ago to supplement his income and help his burgeoning rap career.

"Me doing the grills promoted the fact that I rapped," he said. "With celebrities and high-profile clients I saw it as a networking tool."

He teamed with jeweler Johnny Dang and helped ice the grills of celebrities like Kanye West, Nelly, Cam'ron, Lil' Wayne, Chingy, Brooke Valentine and Z-Ro. He made a $30,000 rose gold set for his buddy, platinum-selling rapper T.I.

FRESH OFF THE GRILL: Houston rapper Paul Wall designed fancy teeth for celebs.

uncommon approach to the common themes of money, cars and women.

As a white kid growing up in suburban Houston, Wall never thought he'd make it as a rapper. And he never dreamed he'd cause a scene like the one that unfolded at a recent video shoot for the single "Sittin' Sideways": A parade of candy-colored cars with dazzling rims, led by a bright purple station wagon with longhorns on the hood, snaking down a Houston street.

Hydraulics helped the station wagon bounce past hundreds of people lined up, hoping to be included in the video. Posters emblazoned with Wall's face covered nearby light posts.

"I always thought the reality of it is, I'm not going to be famous, more than likely," he said.

"I'm not going to be rich. I'm not going to be able to make money off this. So, one, what can I do if it doesn't work? Two, what can I do to try to better my odds?"

FAR OUT: Man, there really is no such thing as bad publicity. Comedian Tommy Chong, jailed for selling drug paraphernalia in 2003, hit the Toronto Film Festival with a new film, "AKA Tommy Chong," and activist stance on the government's anti-marijuana tactics.

ABC wants to speak to a larger range of viewers, in Spanish

STRATEGY | ABC announced it will make all of its prime-time entertainment programs available in Spanish starting this season, and it is hoping to gain something big in the translation.

The move is an acknowledgment of the expanding U.S. Hispanic population and its potential as a source of viewers.

ABC, using both dubbing and

closed captioning, will be the first of the major English-language broadcasters to provide its full primetime entertainment lineup in Spanish. Most other networks offer few shows in the language.

"Desperate Housewives," "Lost," "George Lopez" and the new comedy "Freddie," starring Freddie Prinze Jr., will be dubbed into Spanish, as will the network's theatrical movie premieres and some specials.

The rest of ABC's prime-time entertainment schedule will be available with closed-captioned subtitles in Spanish. LYNN ELBER (AP)

Versatile 'Gatemouth' Brown Dies

APPRECIATION | Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, the singer and guitarist who built a 50-year career playing blues, country, jazz and Cajun music, died Saturday in his hometown of Orange, Texas, where he had gone to escape Hurricane Katrina. He was 81.

His career first took off in the 1940s with blues. Later he became known as a musical jack-of-all-trades who played a half-dozen instruments and culled from jazz, country, Texas blues, and zydeco and Cajun music. "I'm so unorthodox, a lot of people can't handle it," he said in 2001.

The singer-guitarist could — and did — play almost every kind of music.

Brown made more than 30 recordings and won a Grammy in 1982. DOUG SIMPSON (AP)

Get off the Couch

Active new games turn couch potatoes into shoestrings

VIDEO GAMES | Every article about America's obesity epidemic seems to mention video games. But being a dedicated gamer doesn't mean you have to turn into Jabba the Hutt, particularly if your regimen includes selections from the ever-growing genre of rhythm games.

To play games like Konami's "Dance Dance Revolution," you replace your controller with a floor pad and match the onscreen action by stepping on different sections. Even devoted gym rats will work up a sweat during a good "DDR" session.

The newcomer "Pump It Up: Exceed" (Mastiff, for PlayStation 2, Xbox) will challenge "DDR" experts thanks to a simple gameplay twist. The "Pump It Up" pad has pressure points on its corners, demanding more agility. The music is the usual beat-centric techno, with enough elements of metal, classical and Latin to keep things interesting.

Like "Pump It Up," "In the Groove" (RedOctane, for PS2) throws in three- and four-button moves that will have you hitting the floor. Fortunately, it has five difficulty levels, starting with novice level; a fitness mode tells how many calories you've burned in a session. The music is bass-heavy techno, although there are also disco-fied remakes of '90s hits.

"EyeToy Play 2" (Sony, for PS2) is the latest application for Sony's EyeToy peripheral, a camera that If "Pump It Up: Exceed" looks as if it would give gamers a serious workout, it does.

picks up your own movement. The lack of precise control can be frustrating, but the simplicity and variety of the games — and the ridiculousness of watching your friends flail their arms about — make "Play 2" an ideal party game.

BETRAYED

BY OUR GOVERNMENT

Oprah Winfrey told her viewers the story of a man and his 14-year-old dog. The man was forced to leave his dog at an interstate rest stop and “hope for the best” when he was evacuated to Baton Rouge.

Did you know that many thousands of much-loved dogs, cats, and other animals perished after the storm because animal protection agents, who arrived ready and equipped to rescue animals, were refused permission to enter flooded areas although thoroughly trained and prepared? Although FEMA guidelines on animal handling had been carefully crafted in cooperation with PETA and other animal organizations, our government threw them out the window, going so far as to order citizens to abandon their animals under threat of arrest. The animals people clung to were cherished members of the family and were all that some people had left in the world.

Federal authorities tried to force people—including elderly residents—to leave their animals behind to starve. One man was reduced to having to kill his beloved 16-year-old dog. He had saved her from the flood waters and sat with her in a tree for five days but, after having been told that he could not take her with him when he was evacuated, said, “I could not leave her alive in the tree, she was too old to survive.”

A New Orleans child was ordered by a police officer to abandon his dog, Snowball, before being evacuated by bus from the Superdome. The boy was shown repeatedly crying his dog’s name out in vain and later vomiting in distress after the officer tore the animal from his hands.

A Slidell resident offered her evacuators both her own wedding ring and her mother’s wedding ring in an attempt to gain permission to bring her dogs when she and her ill husband were rescued from a New Orleans hospital. The officials would not budge: She and her husband could only bring one item with them, and her husband, a liver transplant recipient, needed medicine to survive. Their dog was left behind to die.

Oprah Winfrey told her viewers the story of a man and his 14-year-old dog. The man was forced to leave his dog at an interstate rest stop and “hope for the best” when he was evacuated to Baton Rouge. Days later, a Good Samaritan managed to reunite the man with the dog. But that tale is the exception; many, many others had to leave their animals on the side of the road.

Eight days after Katrina came ashore, some areas were still off limits to animal rescuers in Mississippi. Images of dogs stranded and starving atop roofs, in trees, and on debris were broadcast nightly on TV.

The animals’ fate in disasters such as this is as much a human-welfare concern as it is one of the animals’ well-being. Professor Richard Garfield of Columbia University says, “It’s very distressing for people, wondering if their pets are isolated or starving.” By failing the animals in the aftermath of Katrina, the federal government failed human beings too. Thousands of storm survivors already crushed by their losses will be left to face the additional anguish of not knowing what became of their beloved animals.

We must learn from this horror and work to ensure that such horrors never visit our soil again. In these United States, we can do better for our citizens and their animals.

What You Can Do

Please immediately contact Sen. Susan Collins, chair, Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs, and ask that during next week’s hearings into the government’s response to Hurricane Katrina, they consider the devastating impact of federal mismanagement on animals. E-mail Sen. Collins at senator@collins.senate.gov.

Please also contact President Bush and urge him to ensure that animals are included in disaster response plans. E-mail President Bush at comments@whitehouse.gov.

Support our Animal Emergency Fund with as generous a donation as you can afford to help fund the timely distribution of our disaster preparedness public service announcements and provide support for PETA and others at ground zero who are helping animals. Call 757-622-7382, extension 8122, or visit HelpingAnimals.com to donate now and for further information and updates.

THAT'S HELLA COOL: Sure, the Simpsons are TV 'toon vets, but Comedy Central's "South Park" is catching up. The network announced it's re-upping Stan, Cartman and the gang for three more years — a total of 12 seasons.

Lifetime Tries Life

A woman saves others and herself in 'Ambulance Girl'

CROSSROADS | Kathy Bates directs and stars in "Ambulance Girl" (9 p.m., Lifetime), an intelligent if flawed drama about a middle-aged woman who challenges her demons and becomes a more fulfilled person, only to discover she may have imperiled her marriage.

It also happens to be based on a true story by Jane Stern, half of the best-selling writing team of Jane and Michael Stern.

For three decades, the Sterns

SELF HELP: Kathy Bates as Jane Stern wants more out of her life and marriage. have written acclaimed books about food, roadside America and popular culture. But Michael's (Robin Thomas) recent recovery from alcoholism and his frequent attendance at AA meetings makes Jane (Bates) feel alone and depressed. She had grown used to his weakness and her role as his caregiver.

After a period of self-pity, Jane decides to join her local ambulance corps. Suddenly, a woman who had only been known for her wit, irony and neuroses has to become strong and selfless. But soon Michael begins to feel excluded. He chides her for neglecting their writing and fears that he's losing his partner.

The problems here are based on a real marriage and are therefore too complicated to be resolved in the space of a TV movie. Still, "Ambulance" deserves credit for its honesty and ambition. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Online Chocolatier

HEATHER DRESSSEL, 29

JOB: Owner of Severna Park, Md.-based clevergirlconfections.com

SALARY: "All the chocolate covered pretzels I can eat," Dressel joked. Running a one-woman start-up means that most of her earnings go straight back into the business.

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in theater from American University

WHAT SHE DOES: Dressel launched Clever Girl in 2004 as a Web-based business specializing in custom chocolate and candy gifts for holidays and special occasions. In addition to the day-to-day operations of the company, Dressel cooks up her own goodies, such as the gourmet caramel apples above, and constructs elaborate gift baskets. Since the candy business typically thrives during the holiday season, she fills the slower spring and summer months with goodies for weddings and baby showers. Recently married herself, Dressel enjoys working with brides to come up with unique favors, like edible chocolate boxes filled with truffles (done in the wedding's colors, of course). And then there's the tasting — "lots of tasting!"

WOULD YOU WANT HER JOB? Life isn't always a box of chocolates. Dressel juggles many mundane responsibilities, such as placing orders, keeping the books and making deliveries, so good time management is a must to survive. And though she does hire some freelance help, she mostly works alone, so loneliness can set in. "It would be nice to have someone around constantly to bounce ideas off of," she said. This also presents a challenge when whipping up sweets. "Last Christmas I did 150 petite caramel apples for an event, which couldn't be made ahead of time since I don't use preservatives," she recalled. "I was up for two days with a one-hour nap in between."

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB: Dressel comes from a family of entrepreneurs — Mom owned her own candy store in New Jersey — so she's learned a lot from experience. For those not so lucky, she recommends taking a chocolate-making class to see if you have the stomach for it, because "chocolate can be temperamental." Try L'Academie de Cuisine (lacademie.com) for classes.

I work in an office where a foreign language is spoken for business. I speak this language fluently, but I'm not a native speaker, so I have an accent. Occasionally, rude individuals will make fun of my accent. Do you have any advice on how to respond?

Look at the commenter askance, and then keep speaking fluently. They'll wake up, or they won't. But you can at least know you come out ahead. I'm sorry they do it, but remember that is only their sad, sad insecurities.

Inventor touts graves with video screens to leave eternal mark

Video screens have shown up all over in recent years — cell phones, bathrooms, car head rests, subway cars, even elevators. Next up: a solar-powered video panel embedded in a tombstone that plays a clip reminiscent of "This Is Your Life."

Tasteless, you might say? A magnet for vandals?

On the contrary, says inventor Sergio Aguirre.

His soothingly named Serenity Panel is all about helping families celebrate the life of a lost loved one.

"While nothing ever replaces the gift of life, memories can now come one step closer to forever being remembered and not forgotten," waxes the Web site of Aguirre's company, Vidstone LLC.

The video headstone concept has been around for years, but previous inventors' ambitions have been laid to rest. One gave up for lack of demand and out of concern his invention wouldn't be able to withstand years of harsh weather.

That's not deterring Aguirre, who quit his telecommunications job last month to work full time on Vidstone.

Aguirre, 32, promises the Serenity Panel will be durable, and while he hasn't sold any yet, he says he's got pre-orders from families whose relatives have died. He wouldn't say how many pre-orders, and he hasn't yet collected any payment.

The device plays a five- to seven-minute video featuring special moments from someone's life that would be compiled by anyone from friends and relatives of the deceased to funeral homes. Vidstone doesn't do video production.

The Serenity Panel's screen is covered by a solar panel, which can be flipped open by visitors. Once opened, the video starts.

FOR ALL ETERNITY: Sergio Aguirre wants to help you speak from the grave.

Tales From the Crypt

The device includes two standard headphone jacks to listen to the audio. The solar panel protects the screen from sun damage and charges a battery inside, Aguirre said. Four hours of sun provides enough juice to play the video continuously for up to 90 minutes.

The 7-inch shatter-resistant LCD screen is designed to last for 15 years, when it can either be replaced with a newer device or covered with a bronze plaque.

Aguirre says the product is vandal-resistant and has been tested to survive the outdoors — the unit will function between 32 degrees and 120 degrees Fahrenheit. He said the panel won't be damaged if temperatures get outside that range.

The Serenity Panel should be ready for sale in October and cost about $1,500, including the use of video-making software, he said.

Aguirre says he got the inspiration for Vidstone at the March 2004 wake for his father-in-law. A movie screen rolled down and a video tribute was played. The first photo was of his father-in-law with a martini in hand, a pink boa wrapped around him and a top hat on.

"And so everybody started chuckling and smiling and the tears kind of cleared up," he said.

Surf's Up, But Where?

At the Beach

Calif. cities squabble over which one is the true surfing capital

Brah, the suits are acting like groms!

(Translation from surf slang: My friend, government officials are acting like children!)

For about 15 years, Santa Cruz in the north and Huntington Beach in the south have both called themselves "Surf City." But late last year Huntington Beach made a legal move to trademark the name "Surf City USA" after the 1963 Jan and Dean hit.

Santa Cruz refused to be snaked.

The city filed objections. And strumming his guitar on a local cable access channel, Mayor Mike Rotkin publicly taunted Huntington Beach, musically challenging them to a surf-off: "Let's have a contest/bring your sticks, but leave your lawyers with their trademark tricks."

Now, the state has gotten involved.

State Sen. Joe Simitian proposed a resolution declaring that since Santa Cruz "is well known around the world as a center of a precious, but hard to define 'surf culture'" it should be designated by the state Legislature as "Surf City USA."

The resolution was approved by a committee, despite objections from Huntington Beach's Sen. John Campbell who harkened back to the original lyrics. "I've done some research," he said. "Neither city has 'two girls for every boy,' so neither should be Surf City."

RIDING A WAVE: Huntington Beach, Calif., thinks it's the true surfer's paradise.

Dean Torrence, who wrote and sang the song in the first place, said he's backing his hometown — Huntington Beach — in this debate.

"I co-wrote the song and I'm really loaning the song and song title to Huntington Beach," he said. "Sure, Santa Cruz is cool, but it's not Surf City, USA. I've been there, I went to the beach, and I didn't see anyone surfing."

In fact, surfers in Santa Cruz rarely paddle out from the beach.

Instead, surfers there scramble, in their wetsuits, down narrow staircases and trails built into the rocky cliffs and then jump — with their boards — into the water.

Both cities have major surf industry companies, dozens of surfing contests, surf statues and lots of sunshine.

"This is a silly argument," said Ben Marcus, an author and former editor of "Surfer" magazine.

The mayor of Surf City, N.J., Leonard Connors, just laughed. "We were founded in 1690," he said. "California wasn't even a state. There's no doubt whatsoever, the real Surf City USA is right here on the East Coast." MARTHA MENDOZA (AP)

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Assert yourself when it comes to dealings with superiors and authority figures. Your own view and ideas are valid and worth full expression.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be sure to thank those who have done you a good turn recently, particularly a loved one who has gone out of his or her way for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Be sure that you're not the one to reveal a secret that is best kept closely guarded. Some things must be kept under wraps.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You have a great deal going for you, but you risk losing ground by losing sight of your primary objective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may be thin-skinned; steer clear of people and situations that you know will present challenges to your feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be unusually frank and critical, even though you know that it will soon be your turn to face considerable criticism yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Discipline and self-control are essential. Things may only get scattered and out of hand if you drift too far off center.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you insist on going it alone, be willing to make certain concessions in the name of safety. Don't risk too much.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone is grooming you for a promotion of sorts, though you may not enjoy the fruits of such a career reward for some weeks to come.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Leave nothing behind. You'll be in need of all your tangible resources; there are few who can look after you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The weight of the world may seem to be on your shoulders. Take an honest look at yourself: Why are you trying to do so much?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have what it takes to be a top-notch companion. A close friend has something big up his or her sleeve that you'll be a part of.

PHIL CRAIG executive producer of "The Flight That Fought Back," was online Friday to discuss the film about United Flight 93 | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

["The Flight That Fought Back" is a minute-by-minute retelling of events aboard United Airlines Flight 93 on Sept. 11, 2001. It premiered on the Discovery Channel on Sunday.]

How do we know for sure if the passengers "fought back"?

Several phone conversations refer to an imminent fightback, and the hijackers themselves are heard on the cockpit voice recorder talking about it, too.

The cell phone calls to loved ones, do you reenact the recipient's side of that call?

No, we have the real people telling that side of the story, intercut with actors representing what was said from the aircraft.

Was it difficult getting the families to participate?

I think that a lot of the families felt the time had come to speak about this. In my experience you can sometimes tell when someone is opening up with a feeling or a memory for the first time, and I felt that very often with this film. A handful did not want to work with us. But the great majority did.

What new information did you uncover for the film?

Several new voicemail messages that have not been shared by families before, and more details of the subtlety of the al Qaeda plot — which when you see it makes it all the more impressive that these 40 strangers managed to fight back.

Let's not pretend this is factual. It is historical fiction — a dramatic interpretation of moments surrounding an event we know occurred, but whose details are lost to time, or in this case, tragic events. It's Hollywood, pure and simple, playing on people's emotions. I think it is a horrible attempt to capitalize on tragedy.

Most people have reacted to the tape in a different way. Call it a documentary. There are a few moments of interpretation in the film and they are clearly marked. Indeed, you cannot really finish the story without having some of them. But the great bulk — I'd say 95 percent — is classic documentary technique based on taped evidence, first person testimony and archive

Are people certain where Flight 93 was headed in D.C.? There have been many theories, the White House, Washington Monument, the Capitol. The 9/11 commission thinks it was the Capitol, based on information from al Qaeda prisoners taken after 9/11. But nobody is really sure.

The Man Show

 Spring looks crisp and comfy for guys

TOMMY HILFIGER'S SPRING 2006 collection incorporates many of his signatures: seersucker, madras, the American flag, and red, white and blue.

But as Hilfiger marked his 20th anniversary in fashion, he said there were many subtle tweaks to his newest designs. For example, the red is softer — almost pink. The blue is lighter, and the white is more the color of sand. "We're reinventing the classics again," he said before sending a staggering 100 looks down the runway Friday night at New York Fashion Week.

"People in their 20s didn't grow up with madras, seersucker, oxfords and pique, so we're giving them a new way of their own to wear it," Hilfiger said.

His men's styles included a red silk linen three-button blazer with a red, white and green plaid shirt, a blue-and-white seersucker pant with nautical embroidered details, and a blue-and-white striped canvas jacket with a navy hood paired with a khaki knee-length short.

Meanwhile, John Varvatos explained in the notes for his Fashion Week show that he was heavily influenced by utilitarian design.

That inspiration was most evident in an earthy peak-lapel "bus driver's jacket" shown with self-belt pants and a linen trench coat in a subtle camouflage pattern.

Billy Delaino, senior market editor for the men's shopping magazine Cargo, particularly liked a distressed motorcycle vest worn over a white light cotton shirt with flight pants.

"Varvatos captured the way men dress — there were a lot of good pieces instead of a head-to-toe look. It's about dressing being easy," he said.

Delaino said the menswear look for spring is classic American style with traditional pieces being worn in new ways.

He noted Kenneth Cole's use of a dark navy seersucker and DKNY Men's pairing of a worn-in leather jacket with a cardigan underneath and pinstriped trousers. SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

← THAT'S HOT:

John Varvatos put his cotton/nylon military parka over a crinkled cotton shirt and white canvas boot-cut jeans. A parka for spring?

↑ MAN PURSE:
Kenneth Cole's suede messenger bag is manly yet so nice and soft.

← STRONG TWILLED:

In reality, this plaid shirt (with Hilfiger's khaki twill suit) should be buttoned.

→ PREP TIME:

Hilfiger paired a striped silk blazer with embroidered khakis and a casual red tee.

"Over the last 5 years my hair continued to become thinner and thinner. I was so self-conscious of my image. Out of desperation I tried every treatment known in the hair industry. Finally, help was on the way after seeing in the EXPRESS newspaper an ad for Trichology/HairSolutions of VA. I decided to schedule an appointment. This was a great decision, because after 3 months, seeing is believing!"
